Back-to-work bill approved

Canada Post strike ends with quick Senate approval Legislation provides for enormous financial penalties in case of defiance

Mail could be moving again by tomorrow following speedy Senate approval of government legislation ordering locked-out Canada Post workers back to their jobs.

During a rare Sunday sitting, senators vigorously debated — but ultimately approved — a bill that sets the stage for resumption of mail service. The legislation received royal assent just hours later.

As the bill made its way through the Senate, members of the upper chamber heard testimony from federal ministers, Canada Post executives and union members.

Letter sorting should resume today in preparation for delivery the next day, Canada Post chief operating officer Jacques Cote told the senators.

The session followed a 58-hour marathon filibuster in the House of Commons led by the opposition New Democrats.

"This is not our first choice in how we would like to see this labour dispute resolved, but the choice is a necessary one. Our citizens cannot afford to be left waiting."
LABOUR MINISTER LISA RAITT

The Conservative benches erupted in cheers after MPs passed the bill Saturday night.

The government tabled the back-to-work bill last Monday after Canada Post locked out the union in the midst of rotating strikes that began early this month. The NDP tried to stall passage of the bill, calling it unfair to the workers.

Several senators also gave the legislation a rough ride, peppering witnesses yesterday with questions about details of the bill, the longer-term implications for Canada Post and the government's overall approach to labour issues.

Liberal Sen. Terry Mercer said the legislation amounted to "the beginning of an attack on public service unions."

"This is contemptuous in its attitude toward a labour union of any kind," added Progressive Conservative Sen. Lowell Murray.

Labour Minister Lisa Raitt told the senators the government acted to preserve Canada's economy.

'Breaded or naked': Food fest sizzles

Victoria Park was jumping this weekend as the London International Food Festival lured food lovers — and the curious — of all ages

MARINA BRKLJACA

The rain didn't help, but it didn't wash out all the fun at the London International Food Festival this past weekend.

Doug Hillier, the festival organizer, said he felt sorry for his vendors because of the rain: "It's a lot of work to set up."

But by Saturday, the park was jumping.

"We kicked chicken ass Saturday," Hillier said. "People came in droves. One of my waffle guys sold out early."

Hillier said rain has seldom, if ever, deterred people from attending. Even if it had rained yetserday, the vendors still would have done well, he said, because people who want a taste of food from different cultures would be in the park, rain or shine.

"They're eating tons of pounds of wings, and they would have eaten more if we didn't have a day and a half of rain."
DOUG HILLIER, ORGANIZER OF THE INTERNATIONAL FOOD FESTIVAL

A popular food this year was wood-oven-baked pizza.

"You smell the wood burning and you think it's barbecue — but it's wood-oven pizza," Hillier said.

But the big headliner was chicken wings, as Hillier introduced Wingfest.

"All things wings — breaded or naked," he said.

Raising a gender-neutral society

Breaking down gender roles is a core mission in Sweden's preschool curriculum Not everyone on board

At the Egalia preschool in Stockholm, staff avoid using words like "him" or "her" and address the 33 kids as "friends" rather than girls and boys.

From the colour and placement of toys to the choice of books, every detail has been carefully planned to make sure the children don't fall into gender stereotypes.

"Society expects girls to be girly, nice and pretty, and boys to be manly, rough and outgoing," says Jenny Johnsson, a 31-year-old teacher. "Egalia gives them a fantastic opportunity to be whoever they want to be."

The preschool is among the most radical examples of Sweden's efforts to engineer equality between the sexes from childhood onward. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Too far?

- Some parents worry things have gone too far. An obsession with obliterating gender roles, they say, could make the children confused and ill-prepared to face the world outside kindergarten.
- "Different gender roles aren't problematic as long as they are equally valued," says Tanja Bergkvist, a 37-year-old blogger and a leading voice against what she calls "gender madness" in Sweden.
- Those bent on shattering gender roles "say there's a hierarchy where everything that boys do is given higher value, but I wonder who decides that it has higher value," she says. "Why is there higher value in playing with cars?"

Calgary teen to be youngest space traveller?

A Canadian teen could become the youngest person ever to go into space.

The 17-year-old Calgary boy is among hundreds of space tourists who have already reserved their place for a flight into the cosmos.

So far, 440 individuals have paid deposits for trips aboard billionaire Sir Richard Branson's Virgin Galactic spaceships and are waiting for final tests to be completed.

The teenager didn't want to be identified.

While many teenagers expect to get their driver's licence when they turn 16, travel agent Michael Broadhurst says the young Calgarian was already looking beyond the horizon.

"He had the money for the space trip put down for him when he was 16," Broadhurst said. "He's 17 now and he will fly at 18.

"He is actually the only one at the moment who is under 18 on the list."

Virgin Galactic won't fly anyone under 18.

The travel agent says it could be another year or two before the teenager, who will be accompanied by a parent, will actually fly, but in the meantime his family doesn't want him doing any interviews.

Obama's auto-pen wields new powers

For decades, presidents let auto-pens scrawl their signatures But signing a bill into law believed a first

MANUEL BALCE CENETA/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Atlantic Plus, the Signascript tabletop-model auto-pen, produces a signature.

It's the open secret that nobody in the U.S. government wants to talk about: That cherished presidential signature that's tucked away in a scrapbook or framed for all to see might never have passed under the president's hand.

Jim Cicconi, who oversaw the use of auto-pens for former president George H.W. Bush, recalls that the plastic signature templates for the machines would wear out from repeated use. Ronald Reagan had 22 different signature templates, including "Ron," "Dutch" and other iterations, says Stephen Koschal, an autograph authenticator.

But U.S. President Barack Obama took the auto-pen into a new realm.

While travelling in Europe last month, Obama directed his staff in Washington to use an auto-pen to sign into law an extension of certain Patriot Act powers to fight terrorism. The legislation had been approved by Congress at the last minute,

That didn't sit well with twenty-one Republican House members, who asked him to sign again with his real signature because use of the auto-pen "appears contrary to the Constitution."

Obama's team argued that the faux signature passed constitutional muster. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Same-sex couples celebrate New York's new law

One of the world's oldest and largest gay pride parades turned into a carnival-like celebration of same-sex marriage yesterday as hundreds of thousands of revelers rejoiced at New York's new law giving gay couples the same marital rights as everyone else.

This year, the revelry was likely to go beyond floats, music and dancing. For the first time, it could include surprise engagements.

Throngs of cheering supporters greeted Gov. Andrew Cuomo as he led off the parade two days after signing the historic bill that made New York the sixth and most populous state to extend full marriage rights to gay couples.

"New York has sent a message to the nation," Cuomo said before the march down Fifth Avenue. "It is time for marriage equality."

Revelers hoisted signs that said "Thank you, Gov. Cuomo" and "Promise kept."

A half-million people were expected to participate.

In Chicago, organizers of that city's parade scrambled to repair dozens of floats after someone slashed their tires overnight at a garage on the South Side.

Parade co-ordinator Richard Pfeiffer said as many as 50 of the approximately 75 floats had damaged tires. The parade was to go ahead as planned,

In New York, the parade stepped off just after noon at 36th Street and Fifth Avenue and headed downtown. It ends at Greenwich and Christopher streets, near the site where gays rebelled against authorities and repressive laws outside the Stonewall Inn in Greenwich Village on June 28, 1969 — an event that gave rise to the gay rights movement.

A year later, several hundred people marched through the neighbourhood to commemorate the riots in what is commonly considered the world's first gay pride parade.

Police discover body in Chatham motel

Police are investigating after a man's body was found in a motel room in Chatham, about 100 kilometres southwest of London.

Chatham-Kent police said they were called to the Kent motel Saturday morning, where they found the body of a 43-year-old man lying on the floor of one of the rooms.

The Criminal Investigations Branch was called in and has taken charge of the case. The body was taken to a hospital in London for an autopsy.

Grads pressured to work for free

Unpaid internships have taken the place of entry-level jobs Some positions illegal, experts say

Young Canadians eager to launch their careers say they're under mounting pressure to take unpaid internships that promise valuable experience and a foot in the door but rarely lead to permanent work.

Unpaid internships are replacing entry-level jobs, experts say, propelled in part by the recession.

But some of these positions are illegal, says Andrew Langille, an employment lawyer in Toronto, because interns are doing work typically performed by paid employees, he says.

Many young grads, while willing to pay their dues at the office, say they can't afford to work for free, particularly while saddled with student loans.

"There's people who say young people expect everything right now, they want this great-paying job," says Heather Bellingham, a 26-year-old from Oshawa, Ont., who has held a string of unpaid internships since graduating from a film and television college program.

"I don't expect a lot — I would love minimum wage."

TRIGGER-HAPPY PHOTOGS UNITE AT PHOTOCAMP

URBAN COMPASS

JILL ELLIS
METRO LONDON

If you're camera shy, stay away from the University of Western Ontario on Saturday, July 9. That's when more than 100 eager photogs will be learning new skills and then practicing them as they walk through campus and north London.

"It's good to get a chance to meet other participants, for some of them this is their bread and butter. For others, it's a passion and some are in between."
KEVIN VAN LIEROP

PhotoCamp London is gearing up for its second year. Leading monthly photo walks around London, in which photography enthusiasts "walk around together taking pictures and sharing creativity," organizer James Wilkinson sought more ways in which Londoners could learn about photography from each other. He was inspired by his experience at PodCamp, an "unconference" that brings together the tech-savvy — and those who want to be — in cities around the world. London's PodCamp just finished its third annual event a couple of weeks ago and has enjoyed great success, so Wilkinson thought the same format would be good for PhotoCamp.

Attendees can also be speakers. Some speakers are set in advance but those who are suddenly inspired to share expertise can sign up to do one of the five to 30-minute talks. The rule of two feet applies; meaning if you're not getting something useful out of a session, move to another one.

According to Wilkinson, both photography and cinematography will be on the menu. There will be 16 to 20 speakers giving short talks about all aspects of photography — from technical to creative. Hands-on learning opportunities will be available in two studios, one indoors and the other outside.

Wilkinson was pleased with last year's attendance of 100 people but anticipates that this year's event will attract many more.

One of those participants was Kevin Van Lierop, a local photographer. He's participated in Wilkinson's photo walks and was pleased to continue the learning process at PhotoCamp. "I sat in one session with a retired photojournalist (Ken Wightman) and he talked about how to edit photos quickly on the road using whatever is available. It was great having someone who has done this all his life teaching me," explains Van Lierop.

Networking is another benefit, he adds. "It's good to get a chance to meet other participants, for some of them this is their bread and butter. For others, it's a passion and some are in between."

Since these types of events are a quest to further proliferate engagement in modern society, Wilkinson says he's pleased that attendees are getting so much out of the experience.

"It's a really great opportunity to get to meet other photographers in the city and learn from them at the same time," he says.

Letters

My daughter and I picked up one of your newspapers to find a very inappropriate picture (Click – you're convicted, Metro, June 23, page 6).

My daughter, 7, pointed out to me that there was a young man giving the finger with both hands in reference to the Vancouver riots. Really? Is there not a better picture you can post in your newspaper? I understand that you are trying to prove your point about people getting caught in pictures, but this is one picture I think should have been thought through.

My daughter was even concerned about why this was shown in "her newspaper." If a seven-year-old child can figure this inappropriate picture, why can't a group of adults figure this one out?

Up until now I have been a promoter of your newspaper and have picked one up daily. This one item has made me second-guess that.

I believe that newspapers are a great way to show our young people how they can affect what goes on around them. I hope that going forward you will think twice before posting your pictures. MICHAEL MCCALLUM

The award for world's ugliest dog goes to...

Yoda's short tufts of hair, protruding tongue, and long, seemingly hairless legs were enough to earn it the World's Ugliest Dog title at a Northern California fair.

The 14-year-old Chinese crested and Chihuahua mix won the honour Friday at the 23rd annual contest at the Sonoma Marin Fair.

Owner Terry Schumacher of Hanford, Calif., says the two-pound dog has come a long way since she was found abandoned behind an apartment building. Schumacher says she first thought the pooch was a rat.

Yoda's distinction comes a year after a one-eyed Chihuahua named Princess Abby claimed victory. A pedigree Chinese crested won in 2008 and another Chinese crested and Chihuahua mix was the ugliest in 2007.

In past years, the winner's owner received $1,000. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

METRO WORLD NEWS IN MOSCOW

Russian movie fans were the first to see the third installment of the Transformers franchise — Transformers: Dark of the Moon — a glammed-up, premiere which opened the 33rd Moscow International Film Festival.

Stars from the $200-million, 3D extravaganza gleefully soaked up the dizzying ambience of the Russian capital's city-space, from the rooftop of the Ritz Carlton Hotel overlooking Red Square and the Kremlin, especially Michael Bay.

"You know, my granddad was from Russia," the 46-yeard-old director of the series confessed to reporters. "My granddad always said nothing good would come out of me and that all my life I'd work as a PE teacher. And so to spite him, I am holding the premiere in Moscow."

At the global press junket it was the irresistible John Malkovich who received the most attention from the Russian press; Malkovich has registered a stream of visits to the country that he almost considered a part of Russia's movie stardom. This time, the 57-year-old arrived with a lady and two children.

"What will you show your kids in Moscow?" one reporter asked. Malkovich laughed off the question. "I didn't know that my kids were here," he said with a wry smile. "But if you see them around in the city, please tell them to urgently call me!"

But the Muscovite media circus wasn't done with their quizzing. Everyone was interested to know if Bay was not afraid in shooting the third Transformers movie, after the second had been labeled worst movie of the year in many circles. "I find this particular question offensive, but nevertheless, I will thrive to answer it," Bay began. "Millions flocked to the theatres to see the second movie — not bad for the 'worst movie of the year,' right?"

Then Bay parries the question. "It's interesting — will the 'best movie of the year' be able to brag about something similar? As for the third movie, thanks to many innovations, has in my view turned out to be even better."

Bollywood shines in Canada

Bollywood bombarded its Canadian fans with a glittering, multi-coloured carnival of song, dance and glamour as India's star-studded version of the Oscars made its North American debut Saturday, capping the South Asian showcase with an appearance by U.S. actors Hilary Swank and a Cuba Gooding Jr.

The five-hour bash, hosted by the International Indian Film Academy, paraded its biggest matinee idols in a boisterous spectacle that kicked off with a series of welcoming remarks and unscripted banter between Bollywood king Shah Rukh Khan and co-hosts Boman Irani and Ritesh Deshmukh

It closed with a taste of Hollywood, as Slumdog Millionaire star Anil Kapoor escorted Swank onto the stage to present a best actor award to Shah Rukh Khan for the 9/11 melodrama, My Name is Khan.

"Namaste, Toronto. Namaste, India. Namaste, world," Swank said.

"Hollywood and Indian cinema must bring the world closer together. I believe in IIFA's vision — one people, one world."

Later, Gooding broke into an impromptu moonwalk before handing out a best director trophy to Karan Johar for My Name is Khan, and expressing appreciation for Indian film.

"I think it's absolutely wonderful how India has travelled the world of entertainment and I would love love to play and be a part of a Bollywood movie myself," said Gooding, who twirled for the fans.

The show capped a three-day campaign to deepen Bollywood's global fanbase with an annual celebration commonly known as the IIFAs. Kapoor offered an enthusiastic greeting to the largely South Asian audience early in the night.

"For the first time in its 12-year history IIFA makes its North American debut and its biggest stars are you," Kapoor said.

"Thank you Ontario. Thank you so much for making us feel the warmth in Canada."

The events included a film festival, music workshop, business forum, fashion show and rock concert across the GTA.

BREAKING NEWS: Gold is at a record high!

THE ROADSHOW HAS FINALLY ARRIVED IN LONDON!!

By: Michael Ross
Great Canadian Roadshow

After a successful week in Kanata, the roadshow is headed to London! So you better search through your attics and basements, go through your lock boxes and jewelry, because you may be sitting on a small fortune and not even know it! Roadshow experts are here to examine all your antiques, collectibles, gold, and silver.

"I'm so happy," Linda explains, "I never would have thought that my old tin of coins was worth so much! I can finally afford to renovate my kitchen."

During our show in Haliburton, a woman came in with a jewelry box that she had just inherited from her late aunt. "I don't wear jewelry," explained Cheryl Barnes, "so it was an easy decision to come down to the Roadshow to sell it". She was very excited when she was able to walk away with a cheque for over $2,100 for jewelry she was never going to wear anyways.

Expert Cliff Edwards explains, "We have noticed a substantial increase in the amount of precious metals such as gold and silver coming to the Roadshow, which makes sense considering how high it's currently trading at. He added, "The Roadshow is great because it puts money in people's pockets, especially during such hard times. Lots of items that are just sitting around collecting dust in basements and jewelry boxes can be exchanged for money, on the spot! ".

At another Roadshow event, a woman walked in with a tin full of hundreds of old coins that were given to her as a young child by her grandfather. She finally decided to come in to the Roadshow and see what he had given her. She was ecstatic to learn she had coins dating back to the late 1800's, some of which were extremely rare. Roadshow consultant Raymond Flack explains "We had uncovered an 1871 Queen Victoria 50 Cent piece, valued at over $2,000!! She also had a nice assortment of coins that were not rare dates, but she was able to sell them for their silver content". All in all, Roadshow customer Linda Donaldson was able to cash in with $4,500! "I'm so happy", Linda explains, "I never would have thought that my old tin of coins was worth so much! I can finally afford to renovate my kitchen."

Raymond Flack continued, "Canadian coins prior to 1967, and American coins prior to 1964 are all made with silver, and we have noticed a large increase of customers coming to the Roadshow with coins and cashing them in for their silver value."

Joanne Burke ecstatic with her roadshow experience.

Experts at the Roadshow will evaluate and examine your items, FREE OF CHARGE, as well as educate you on them. The Roadshow sees hundreds of people during a one week event, and they have been travelling across Canada to different cities and towns, searching for your forgotten treasures.

Trains, dolls, toys, old advertising signs, pocket watches, porcelain and bisque dolls, pretty much everything can be sold at the Roadshow. Any early edition Barbie's are sought after by Roadshow collectors, as well as a variety of Dinky Toys and Matchbox Cars. Lionel Trains and a variety of tin toys can also fetch a price, especially if they are in their original box or in mint condition. If a collector is looking for one of your collectables, we can always make an offer to buy it.

"We have noticed a substantial increase in the amount of precious metals such as gold and silver coming to the Roadshow, which makes sense considering how high it's currently trading at."

A man brought in a 1950's Marx Tin Toy Robot, in fairly good condition, still in its original box. We were able to locate a collector for that specific toy within minutes, and that gentleman went home with over $700 for his Toy Robot and a few other small toys.

So whether you have an old toy car, a broken gold chain, or a Barbie sitting in the closet, bring it down to the Roadshow, we will take a look at it for FREE and it could put money in your pocket!

Stressed & pregnant

As the pregnant wife of disgraced U.S. congressman Anthony Weiner, Huma Abedin has had a long few weeks It got us wondering: How does extreme stress affect one's baby-to-be?

THINKSTOCK.COM

When pregnant, how much stress is too much?

SAM CASTONE
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA

METRO WORLD NEWS

U.S. congressman Anthony Weiner recently resigned from office after sending lewd comments and photos to young women — and lying about it after getting caught by the press.

It was a shocking fall for a brash but effective politician — shocking more so because his wife, Huma Abedin, an aide to Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton, is reportedly in the early stages of pregnancy.

As parents, we wondered what affect the ongoing stress of a scandal might have on her baby.

All the mom-to-be books say you should try to reduce stress during the nine months.

"Extreme stress in pregnancy can lead to preterm delivery and low birth weight babies. And there may even be some evidence that it can lead to miscarriage."

DR. ARI BROWN, PEDIATRICIAN AND CO-AUTHOR OF EXPECTING 411

"It takes extreme amounts of stress to affect a pregnancy," says Dr. Ari Brown, a pediatrician and co-author of Expecting 411. "By extreme, this means divorce, death of a family member, major financial disaster or loss of home by fire. The day-to-day stresses of a job or home life that most of us experience is not enough to worry about."

Depending on your perspective, Weiner's behaviour might fall into the "extreme" category.

"We all process stressful situations differently," says Brown. "In the case of this particular situation, it is surely stressful for any pregnant woman to endure the emotional infidelity of her husband both privately and publicly.

"But, it would only be pure speculation how the two of them are handling this in the context of their relationship. And, frankly, it is none of our business!"

"What we do know medically," Brown continues, "is that extreme stress in pregnancy can lead to preterm delivery and low birth weight babies. And there may even be some evidence that it can lead to miscarriage."

One study in 2008 showed there might be a link between maternal stress and schizophrenia later in life.

"Stress increases the release of a hormone called cortisol, which is currently being investigated as the link to miscarriage, preterm labour, and unfortunate pregnancy outcomes," says Brown.

The moral of this story (and you don't need a medical study to prove it): If you're a father-to-be, don't cheat on your wife!

How to deal

Feeling stressed during pregnancy? Here are some tips seen in Expectancy 411.

1. Remember your hormone levels are elevated, so situations you may have been able to handle before may now overwhelm you.
2. Do activities that have traditionally decreased your stress levels: yoga, meditation, acupuncture.
3. Read a pregnancy book you trust, and call your doctor if anything seems wrong. No use stressing about your stress.

The not-so-sinful deviled eggs

This healthy version of the summer picnic and barbecue staple makes it more angelic than devilish

MATTHEW MEAD/ THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ Low fat mayo and low-fat cottage cheese make these deviled eggs less fattening.

Devilled eggs are a classic accompaniment to summer picnics and barbecues. But they generally are loaded with fat and calories from the egg yolks and mayonnaise.

We set out to remake the filling to be flavourful, yet pack significantly less guilt. Egg yolks do have great nutritional value; the majority of an egg's vitamins and minerals are actually found in the yolk. But along with those nutrients are plenty of fat and cholesterol.

To lower the fat and cholesterol but keep the luscious flavour, we opted to use just some of the yolks. For the creaminess associated with mayonnaise, we use a combination of low-fat mayonnise and pureed low-fat cottage cheese.

The cottage cheese may sound a little off-putting, but it's a great trick for when you need something thick, creamy and low-fat.

With a relatively neutral flavour, it can be combined with other ingredients, such as fresh herbs, to be used in place of mayonnaise, even as a sandwich spread.

Ingredients:

- 12 large eggs
- Ice
- 125 ml (1/2 cup) low-fat cottage cheese
- 45 ml (3 tbsp) low-fat mayonnaise
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) Dijon mustard
- 10 ml (2 tsp) cider vinegar
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) prepared horseradish
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) sweet pickle relish
- Salt and ground black pepper, to taste
- Fresh chives, to garnish
- Smoked paprika, to garnish

Preparation:

1. Place eggs in a large saucepan and fill with cool water. Cover pan and bring to a boil over medium-high heat. Remove pan from heat and let sit for 15 minutes. Drain hot water, leaving eggs in pan. Fill pan with cold water and a cup of ice. Let eggs cool completely.

2. Meanwhile, in a food processor, combine cottage cheese, mayonnaise, mustard, vinegar and horseradish. Purée until smooth. Set aside.

3. Peel eggs but keep them intact. Slice eggs in half lengthwise. Retain egg whites. Discard half of the yolks.

4. In a medium bowl, mash remaining yolks. Add puréed dressing mixture and relish. Stir to combine, then season with salt and black pepper. Using a pastry bag or a zip-close bag with the corner cut off, or using a spoon, refill wells in the egg whites. Garnish tops with a sprinkle of smoked paprika and some chopped chives.

Trout gets colour treatment

A refreshing strawberry salsa makes a great companion for grilled fish

THE CANADIAN PRESS H/O

▶ This recipe makes four servings.

Ingredients:

- Half greenhouse sweet yellow pepper, finely diced
- Half greenhouse cucumber (unpeeled), finely diced
- 50 ml (1/4 cup) sliced green onions
- 30 ml (2 tbsp) chopped fresh coriander
- 30 ml (2 tbsp) rice vinegar
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) vegetable oil
- Salt and pepper, to taste
- 375 ml (1 1/2 cups) strawberries, hulled and diced

Fish

- 1 kg (2 lb) rainbow trout fillets (with skin)
- Salt and pepper, to taste

Preparation:

1. In a medium bowl, stir together yellow pepper, cucumber, onions and coriander. In a small bowl, whisk together vinegar, oil, salt and pepper; pour over vegetables and gently stir to coat. Cover and refrigerate for at least 1 hour. Just before serving, stir in strawberries.

2. Fish: Brush trout with oil; sprinkle with salt and pepper. Place fillets, skin side down, on greased grill over low heat; close lid and cook until fish is opaque and flakes easily when tested with a fork, about 15 minutes. Do not turn. Insert spatula between skin and flesh, removing flesh and leaving skin on grill. (When grill cools, it will come off easily.) Serve with salsa.

We all have those moments: The alarm goes off, and we think, "Do I really have to go to work today?"

Most of the time, reason and routine win. We dismiss the thought, hop out of bed, hit the shower, have a coffee and merge into the morning commute.

Sometimes, though, we stop and really consider the question. Maybe we're burned out or unhappy with the job. Maybe we had abandoned a childhood dream or found a new passion along the way. And thanks to luck, financial planning and the support of loved ones – or maybe just a high tolerance for risk – we realize: Quitting is an option.

When I tell people I quit my job as a reporter for The Associated Press to become a veterinarian – that I am taking the first of a zillion pre-vet science classes in a plan that now extends into the year 2020 – many say they wish they could take that plunge.

I think the reason so many don't is that it's painful to admit we made a mistake. And quitting, well, isn't that just another word for failing?

In my case, my experience with animals was limited to childhood pets: a goldfish, two small lizards and a hermit crab. Recently, however, I adopted a mutt from the shelter and started volunteering there. When she was hurt in an accident, I spent a lot of time talking to surgeons and rehab specialists. That's when the idea of ditching the career I had pursued for more than a decade took hold.

I found countless reasons to doubt my motives. Was I mistaking the pleasure of a new hobby for a calling? Would I be trading the petty complaints about one job for similar gripes about another?

Changing careers is not uncommon, as it turns out; Americans typically do it five to seven times in their lives, and increasingly, they are seeking more meaningful work, said Kimberly Key, president of the National Employment Counseling Association.

"You didn't see this 25 to 50 years ago. People weren't trying to have meaningful careers. They were trying to focus on family, survive, and take care of the next generations," Key said. "As we evolved as a society, in our thirst for work, to survive, to grow, to be the best, to compete in the world, we lost something."

There also is an ongoing shift in the type of jobs available, from full-time positions to contract ones. Jobs that offer lifelong security and benefits are becoming endangered, Key said. Rather than see this as a negative, though, she thinks that accepting it can remove the stress and shame of changing careers.

Romero a double threat as Jays sweep Cardinals

The Toronto Blue Jays expected Ricky Romero to go deep into the game. Getting a major contribution from his bat was a huge bonus.

Romero threw a four-hitter for his second career shutout and helped break it open with his first career hit as the Blue Jays whipped the St. Louis Cardinals 5-0 yesterday for a three-game sweep.

"I'm not a good hitter," Romero said. "So it definitely feels good to help myself out in that situation."

J.P. Arencibia homered and Yunel Escobar had two hits and an RBI for the Blue Jays, who had lost four in a row before arriving at Busch Stadium. All three starters worked at least six innings for Toronto, which climbed back to .500 and earned its first series sweep since May 13-15 at Minnesota.

Manager John Farrell said he anticipated in spring training that Romero would assume a leadership role in the rotation, and hasn't been disappointed.

"He's the lead guy and guys follow his example," Farrell said. "He's on a very good run in terms of total innings pitched, but yet you look at total number of pitches thrown, he's been very efficient for the better part of two months."

A goal, but no win

Christine Sinclair gets ball into German net, but Canadians drop World Cup opener 2-1 to two-time defending champion

GERMANY	CANADA
2	1

She busted her nose and then bent it like Beckham. And then simply for effect, Canada's star striker Christine Sinclair blew a kiss to her coach.

Sporting a crooked nose and a well-deserved black captain's armband, Sinclair scored Canada's lone goal on a lovely bending free kick yesterday as the sixth-ranked Canadians opened the 2011 Women's World Cup with a 2-1 loss to two-time defending champion Germany.

"That's Sinky," said Canadian striker Melissa Tancredi. "She plays through anything, which is what a captain should do."

Sinclair's goal in the 82nd minute — No. 117 of her illustrious career — marked the first the mighty German side had conceded in a World Cup tournament since 2003. It also came 34 minutes after Canada's powerful five-foot-nine striker was knocked to her knees, plowed in the face by an elbow from Babett Peter.

"I looked at (Sinclair) — she takes the front post on corners — and thought, 'Oh my. Her nose is like a big zig-zag,'" said Canada's goalkeeper Erin Mcleod. "I said, 'Do you really want to still be here?' And she said, 'Yeah, I got it.'

"She's tough. She wears the armband for a reason."

The 28-year-old Sinclair was down on all fours on the Olympiastadion grass for several minutes after the harsh blow, for which no foul was given, and then was helped to the sidelines where she argued with a Canadian medical official to let her go back into the game. She swatted away his hand and said, "I'm fine. Don't touch me."

Canada's coach Carolina Morace was advised to pull her out of the game, the medical official bending Sinclair's nose to display the damage. But the Burnaby, B.C., native was back in the game moments later, and Morace has no doubt her gutsy captain will be back on the pitch Thursday when the Canadians take on France.

"What do you think? If she played today with the nose broken, do you think I can take her off the field next time?" the Italian coach said with a laugh.

Sinclair was sent to a nearby Berlin hospital immediately after the game, and Morace said she'll likely wear a protective mask in the next game.

"It doesn't look the prettiest right now," Tancredi said, with a giggle.

Traveller's spirit and Scotiabank support help Shanghai native start Canadian journey

As the operator of a Shanghai travel agency, Yuxiang Zhang had a love of travel that he put to the test when he decided to move to Canada. But when he faced worries about this colossal trip, he discovered how Scotiabank's multinational team and services can provide a smooth landing.

Mr. Zhang's personal journey began after he visited Becky, his only daughter, who had migrated to Canada in 1999. Seeing how she was enjoying her life in a friendly, multicultural country, he decided to become a family class immigrant.

"I was excited to join my daughter, but I was also unsure about the details, such as how would I move forward without speaking English?" says Mr. Zhang, who also wondered about practical issues such as the process to transfer money to a Canadian bank.

"Before the workshop, I was very worried, but afterwards I felt relieved, and it gave me the courage to move forward," recounts Mr. Zhang, who arranged for his Canadian and U.S. dollar bank accounts with Scotiabank, and applied for a credit card, while still in Shanghai, through the Bank's partnership with China Everbright Bank.

After landing in Toronto in late 2009, Mr. Zhang went alone to the Scotiabank branch at the Steeles & Silverstar location to activate his accounts. Speaking only Mandarin and Russian, he wasn't sure how things would go. Luckily, he was greeted by Isa Ho, Branch Manager, and her multilingual staff. "Surprisingly, it went well, and my accounts and debit card were ready, and my VISA* card came within a week," marvels Mr. Zhang.

Isa, a Canadian immigrant who speaks both Cantonese and Mandarin, is well prepared to serve newcomers. She often calls them long distance before they move, to help them prepare. "I tell them about banking options and what are the best schools for their kids," says Isa, a 31-year veteran of Scotiabank, who still remembers seeing donuts for the first time when she arrived. "When they get here, we answer their questions about Canadian customs, and explain about banking in Canada. Also, since many newcomers want to buy a home, we educate them on Canadian mortgages and how to avoid credit mistakes."

Today, Mr. Zhang is enjoying life in Canada, studying English and preparing to start a tour business for both Chinese and Canadian travellers. During an upcoming visit to China, he will tell others about the opportunities in Canada and "the friendly, open and trustworthy service I experience at Scotiabank."

That's good news for Isa Ho who teaches her Scotiabank team to "Welcome every newcomer with a smile, speak their language, and serve them with our hearts."

THIS ADVERTORIAL IS PREPARED BY SCOTIABANK.

With Scotiabank's help, Mr. Yuxiang Zhang is discovering a world of opportunities in Canada.

"Alex helped open the door to our new start in Canada."
